UCR School of Public Policy Internship Program 政策学院实习项目

Brian S. Nakamura

Retired City Manager – Internship Coordinator
退休城市经理人—实习项目主管

Background – Internship Program 项目背景

- Established in 2014 by Mayor Loveridge
2014年由Loveridge市长创立
- Essential for integrating academic rigor with practical work experience and professional development
- Prepares students for careers in:
 - local, state, and federal public agencies (e.g, water districts, school districts, economic development offices, environmental regulatory agencies, and rapid transit authorities)
 - non-profit organizations and NGOs
 - for-profit companies that deal with public agencies and governments

What's distinctive about UCR's School of Public Policy Internship Program?

- Only the third public policy school in the entire University of California system and first in implementing a required internship program
- Internship program requires students to enroll in a course that integrates theory of public policy analysis with assigned policy work in public and nonprofit agencies.

- Students learn and work with practitioners on how to address and solve real-world policy problems
- Exposure to both environmental and social policy, with attention paid to the interconnections between the two
- Emphasis on regional policy-making, since most pressing policy problems are regional in nature and cut across traditional administrative boundaries like towns, counties, and provinces
- Emphasis on applying policy solutions from around the world to solving local and regional policy challenges

Why Internships are Required

- Exposes students to how policy analysis is actually applied in real-world settings in a variety of sectors, such as the environment, health, transport, law enforcement, and energy
- Provides professional development opportunity for students and introduces them to workplace culture, etiquette and norms
- Employers value work experience, and so internships often lead to jobs with the agency

Internship Opportunities

- For graduate students, 3-month summer (July - September) internship required for MPP students between year 1 and 2 of program, providing rigorous analytical training and hands-on practical experience.
- For undergraduate students, one 3-month internship during fall, winter or spring quarter, providing exposure to policy development, analysis, and evaluation
- Strong SPP-agency partnership -- internship recognition events held at SPP throughout the academic year to share appreciation of and obtain feedback from participating agencies, supervisors, and interns

 - County of Riverside
 - County of San Bernardino
